Facing an Audit? Don't Be Bullied

Intimidated. That is how most people feel when facing an IRS audit. It takes time away from work, family - and sleep - to deal with an audit. It is also dangerous. IRS auditors are trained to extract more information than you are required to provide.. and if you don't comply with the audit process, the cost of changes, penalties, and interest charges by the auditor can exceed your annual income!
We recommend that you don't speak or meet with the auditor - let us do it for you We will handle all correspondence and meetings, putting the IRS on notice that you will not be bullied.
We will review your record with you to determine ant areas where your documentation may be inadequate. We will meet with the IRS in their office or ours, but not in your home or office! You can continue your personal and business life, while we deal with the IRS for you.

What does the IRS Really Know?

Your entitled to see your own IRS file. Many taxpayers are surprised to learn how much the IRS really knows - or doesn't know - about them. We can quietly request information for you without raising red flags, and usually receive the information within 30 days. We know who to ask for your file and how to translate the coded documents in it.
